Dear Sirs,

Thank you for your open letter addressed to President Antonio Tajani, President Donald Tusk and President Jean-Claude Juncker.

The issues you raise in your letter are certainly very pertinent. The European Parliament elections on 23 to 26 May were tangible proof that European democracy is alive and well. The highest turnout in 20 years shows that many Europeans are eager to engage, participate and shape the future of our Union. Many of these active citizens are young people, who indeed have to be at the centre of our efforts to build a resilient, cohesive and fair Europe. As Commissioner for Youth, I am proud of the many opportunities the EU offers them today to do so – although we are very well aware that we will have to do more in the future.

My services are currently exploring the possibility of a coordinated response to your letter between the three institutions.

Yours sincerely,

Tibor Navracsics
